Dear Readers,

I am delighted that JOT ends its 2006 publication year with six columns including a Guest Column by Alan Ward. As always I am grateful to our columnists for taking time from their busy work and travel schedules to meet our publication deadline. JOT has not missed a single issue since its inception and this is in large measure attributable to our columnists not missing their deadlines.

Design patterns for .NET 2005, metrics, pattern matching, framework development models and meta-models are some of the topics presented among the five feature-length papers. I hope you will find these papers useful.

I wish our readers a safe and healthy holiday season.

Richard Wiener
